

Of course this is the same buddy who sells meat out of his truck and always wants to borrow a twenty from you. You just really don't want to hear about those "boy you should have" situations because it can drive you nuts.

It's like when an old girlfriend, who still looks like she belongs on a calendar, calls looking for a little company. Sure the track is still there, but

- "I've had a lot of luck."
- "I never felt better in my life."
- "I wish there were more young people in the neighbourhood."

And miles to go before I sleep

You know a lot of us middle-aged guys are reading the obituaries and discovering that guys a lot younger than us

All I'm saying is that as I go down the highway of life, I'm happy to have the extra weight. Especially the way I drive.

Quote of the Day:

"If it's true that you learn from your mistakes, I must be a genius."
